

Women in Energy - Role Brief

The Women in Energy role within CIGRE Australia aims to promote gender diversity within our organisation to address the significant under-representation of women in the power sector and within CIGRE Australia.

The position is a volunteer role and is appointed by the CIGRE Australia Board. The initial term is for two years with the option for a term year extension.

Responsibilities of the Women in Energy representative

The Women in Energy representative will:

- Lead the Women in Energy initiatives and advocate for gender diversity within CIGRE Australia
- Contribute to Board strategic planning and decision-making processes and report to the Board from time to time
- Attend CIGRE's International Women in Energy bimonthly meetings (online) as the CIGRE Australia representative
- Foster collaboration and engagement among members and represent CIGRE Australia in relevant forums and events

Applications

The role is open to Individual Members and employees of Collective Members.

Applications should be submitted to submissions@cigreaustralia.org.au by 5.00pm 18 October 2024 (AEDT).

The application should set out in no more than 250 words relevant experience and the applicant's demonstrated commitment to promoting gender diversity.
